What is Psoriasis?

Psoriasis is a non-contagious, chronic skin condition that produces round, dry skin patches of varying size that are covered with white, gray, or silvery-white scales. Remissions and exacerbations are commonly experienced in most cases. Between four and five million American adults have the disease, and more than 150,000 new cases are diagnosed every year.

Normally your skin sheds its layers every 25-30 days. In psoriasis the affected lesions shed ever 3-4 days resulting in a buildup of silvery scales. The dry scales penetrate your superficial skin layer resulting in itching.

Cause of Psoriasis

There is no definite cause of psoriasis; however there is evidence of an autoimmune response in which the body's immune system mistakenly targets its own healthy cells.

Predisposing factors:

Genetic predisposition: A positive family history may predispose you to be affected by this condition

General aggravating factors: These are responsible for aggravating or causing the lesions to reappear:

- Physical & Emotional Stress
- Seasonal changes: Winter months may cause an increase in dryness and may aggravate psoriasis
- Environmental factors - Skin irritants, local trauma, infections, alcohol, steroid withdrawal etc.

Myths & Facts

The first MYTH: Psoriasis has no cure

FACT: Psoriasis can be cured if treated early with homeopathy and when the condition is limited to a few patches. Even chronic, widespread lesions can be cured or put into remission. There is no need to lose hope as homeopathy has helped thousands of cases at HRD centre's, over the past 25 years.

The second MYTH: Psoriasis is contagious

FACT: You can be assured that you will not communicate this condition merely by touching someone. Though not contagious, your child may be predisposed (genetics) to this ailment. We do recommend that children be treated as soon as possible in order to have a complete chance or recovery and cure.

The third MYTH: Corticosteroids are effective

FACT: Corticosteroids can be effective initially. However, they are not effective in the long term and may produce several adverse effects such as: skin atrophy, hypo-pigmentation, stretch marks and systemic absorption. Also, withdrawal of topical corticosteroids can lead to a rebound phenomenon with worsening of the condition.

Conventional approach

Physicians or Dermatologists usually prescribe local steroids or systemic drugs capable of directly minimizing skin-cell reproduction and controlling plaque formation. They do not help in correcting the mechanism responsible for the excessive shedding (plaque formation) and therefore requires to be taken for a life time. Excessive dependency may result in poor tolerance and the dosage of these drugs is often increased over time. Numerous side effects like liver damage and photosensitivity are associated with these drugs.

Advances in Homeopathy

Psoriasis, often labeled as external, chronic and incurable can be completely cured in a large number of cases. Cases wherein the lesions are widespread and relapsing can be effectively controlled with a marked reduction in the size of lesion and its reoccurrence. Symptoms of itching and scaling, often marked in psoriasis, can be minimized greatly and long-term relief undoubtedly achievable.

Homeopathic approach

Our body constantly strives at bringing about normalcy by responding to changes it perceives reversible. In psoriasis and in most chronic ailments our body fails to respond appropriately due to a weakened state.

Homeopathic medicines help by improving our body's (immune) innate response and guide the body back to a healthy state, naturally.

HRD's Treatment Outcome

Though there is no known cure for psoriasis, the treatment offered at our centres has offered a disease-free period (cure) in mild to moderate cases and considerably prevent or minimize relapses in chronic / widespread cases.

Superior Treatment Outcome can be achieved when:

- Disease is of recent origin in any age group
- Patches are few (3-4) and may be anywhere on the body
- Affecting individuals who are otherwise in fine health

Longer Duration of Treatment may be required when:

- Psoriasis lesions are rapidly increasing
- Lesions are chronic, multiple and widespread
- Lichenification of the lesions has occurred
- Positive family history of the disease is established
